

Beatrice originally comes from Babati, Manyara District and completed her undergraduate degree in Wildlife Management at Sokoine University of Agriculture in Morogoro. Her first volunteer assignment with Kesho Trust was to undertake the research and writing of a community profile for our partner organization SWEAT in Kiteto District. Subsequently she participated in the work of our PECC project in the Saadani area assisting with workshops and research being undertaken among the community committees. She hosted international volunteers as well and has been a keen supporter of our work in Tanzania.

Beatrice received support through the Norwegian Ministry of Foreign Affairs to attend the Norwegian University of Science and Technology (NTNU) in Trondheim, Norway in late 2014. She has now completed her thesis entitled: Impacts of Protected Areas on Local Livelihood: A Case Study of Saadani National Park.

Her thesis is posted on our website at: <http://www.thekeshotrust.org/cms/wp-content/images/Beatrice-Masters-thesis.pdf>
