

Penina Mairo is from the community of Mugumu, in Serengeti District, Tanzania. She recently completed her Bachelor of Science degree in Wildlife Science and Conservation at the University of Dar es Salaam. During her studies she participated in practical field training programs in Serengeti National Park and Saadani National Park and attended seminars on wildlife management and anti-poaching at Sokoine University of Agriculture.

Penina volunteered with the Kesho Trust during a program of community workshops focused on community based tourism held in the Saadani area and linked to the PECC project of the Kesho Trust. She has written about her reflections on the experience in a journal entry posted on our website at:

<http://www.thekeshotrust.org/journal/2016/practical-experience-in-saadani/>

